ELIS Website — Content Questionnaire

Hey team,

I'm pulling together the content revamp based on our last call. To make the pages sound like you instead of a generic insurance site, I need your actual answers to the questions below, not textbook definitions. Short and in your own words is perfect, I'll shape it into page copy.

1. Why ELIS, Why Now?

In 2-3 sentences: why did you start Enterprise Life as a new company instead of staying where you were? This goes on the About page — it's the one thing every visitor should understand about who you are.

2. Home Page + Section Intros

Three spots outside About/Who We Help/Services still read generic:

Homepage hero: "Personalized life insurance, disability insurance, group benefits, and estate planning — from advisors who've been doing this since 1994." Does leading with "since 1994" undersell that ELIS itself is new (the "new company, not new advisors" line is right above it)? Anything you'd rather lead with?

Who We Help index intro: "A business owner and a tradesperson need different coverage — here's how. We build plans around how you actually live and work, not a generic checklist."

Services index intro: "One advisor handled her life insurance, benefits, and estate plan together. Comprehensive coverage, under one roof." — is that a real client scenario, or should it be phrased differently since it reads like an anecdote?

Flag anything here you'd rewrite.

3. Advisor Bios

Current bios below — flag anything wrong, and tell us if you want more detail added (what you specialize in, how you work with clients, anything that sets you apart).

Jay Bablani (Advisor): "Jay Bablani has been writing insurance policies since 1994. His work today spans life insurance, disability insurance, and financial and estate planning — bringing three decades of hands-on advisor experience into Enterprise Life Insurance and Investment Solutions."

Glenn Merkley (Director): "Glenn Merkley brings more than 30 years of insurance industry experience to his role as Director. With a background specializing in commercial insurance and serving business owners, professionals, and high-net-worth clients, Glenn provides strategic leadership and industry insight that support the company's commitment to exceptional client service and long-term financial protection.

His extensive experience and client-focused approach help guide the organization's vision and growth while ensuring clients remain at the center of everything the company does."

Ekta Balani (Insurance Broker & Financial Planner): "Ekta Balani is a RIBO-certified Insurance Broker and Financial Planner at Enterprise Life, specializing in life insurance for clients and their families."

4. Reference Sites

You mentioned other insurance sites as a reference on our last call — which ones specifically? Send links so I can match the tone/depth you're pointing at.

5. Carrier Relationships

We have your partner logos (Manulife, Sun Life, Canada Life, Equitable, Scotiabank, TD, National Bank, First National, Home Trust, Mackenzie, Quadrus, RMG) on the site already, but no copy explaining them. In one or two sentences: why does it matter to a client that you work with this specific set of carriers? (e.g. more options, better rates, independence from any one insurer, etc.)

6. Who We Help Pages — Body Copy + FAQs

It's not just the FAQs that read disconnected — the intro line and the "What We Help You Plan For" list on each page are also currently generic/written by us, not pulled from how you actually talk to these clients. For each segment: (a) tell me if the intro + list below actually matches what you'd say, or what's wrong/missing, and (b) give real answers to the FAQ questions.

Business Owners & Contractors

Current intro: "A business owner and a tradesperson need different coverage than an employee does — your income, your debt, and your business are tied together in ways a standard policy doesn't account for."

Current "What We Help You Plan For" list:

- Business loans and lines of credit tied to a personal guarantee
- Key person risk — what happens to the business if you're the one who gets hurt or sick
- Passing the business to a partner or family member without a clear plan
- Attracting and retaining employees without a competitive benefits package

ctrl the hype.

Does that match reality? What's missing, wrong, or not how you'd say it?

FAQs needing your real answers:

- What happens to my business loan if something happens to me?
- What's key person insurance, and do I need it?
- Can I offer group benefits without it being complicated to manage?
- I already have insurance through my trade association — do I need anything else?

Health Care

Current intro: "Between long hours and high liability, your coverage needs to work as hard as you do — and account for how specialized your income actually is."

Current "What We Help You Plan For" list:

- Disability coverage that reflects your specific specialty, not a generic occupation category
- Outstanding student debt that would remain even if your income stopped
- Overhead expenses for practice owners if you're unable to work
- Group benefits for practice staff

Does that match reality? What's missing or wrong?

FAQs needing your real answers:

- What is own-occupation disability coverage, and why does it matter for me?
- I still have student debt. Does that affect my coverage needs?
- I own my practice — what's overhead expense insurance?
- How is this different from what my hospital or group offers?

Architect and Engineers

(Tile renamed from "Engineers" to "Architect and Engineers" — the intro/list/FAQ below are still written for engineers only. Do they also apply to architects, or does this page need architect-specific additions?)

Current intro: "Income protection and estate planning, modeled with the same precision you bring to your own work — not a flat percentage rule of thumb."

Current "What We Help You Plan For" list:

- Income replacement modeled against your actual earning trajectory, not a generic multiple
- Disability coverage that doesn't lose value to inflation over a long career
- Estate planning for RRSPs, pensions, and equity compensation

- Coordinating group benefits with individual coverage to avoid gaps or overlap

Does that match reality? What's missing or wrong?

FAQs needing your real answers:

- How is my coverage amount actually calculated?
- Does my coverage keep pace with inflation?
- I have group coverage through my employer. Do I need my own policy too?
- What happens to my RRSPs and pension if I die before retirement?

Families & Individuals

Current intro: "Coverage that protects the people who depend on you — clear, and built around your life, not a generic checklist."

Current "What We Help You Plan For" list:

- Income replacement so your family can stay in their home and routine
- Coverage for a stay-at-home parent, whose contribution isn't a paycheck but still has real cost
- Mortgage protection
- Guardianship and estate planning for minor children

Does that match reality? What's missing or wrong?

FAQs needing your real answers:

- How much life insurance do we actually need?
- My spouse doesn't work outside the home — do we still need to insure them?
- We just had a baby. What should we be thinking about?
- Is mortgage protection the same as life insurance?

7. New Who We Help Pages — Professional / Mortgage Brokers / Farmers / IT Professionals

These four are brand new — there's no draft copy to react to yet, so the pages are currently live with a "full details coming soon" placeholder and a Talk to an Advisor button, nothing invented. For each, same format as above once you send it: an intro line, a 3-4 item "What We Help You Plan For" list, and 3-4 FAQ questions + real answers.

Professional — is this meant for a specific group (lawyers, accountants, consultants?) or professionals in general? That'll shape the copy.

Mortgage Brokers

Farmers

IT Professionals

8. Services Pages — Body Copy + FAQs

Same deal: check the intro + "Coverage Overview" list per service against reality, then answer the FAQs for real.

Life Insurance

Current intro: "Income replacement and legacy protection for the people who depend on you."

Current "Coverage Overview" list:

- Term life insurance for a fixed period, sized to a mortgage, debt, or income-replacement need
- Permanent life insurance for lifelong coverage and cash value growth
- Beneficiary and estate planning coordination
- Coverage that can adjust as your life changes — a new mortgage, a new child, a new business

Does that match reality?

FAQs:

- What's the difference between term and permanent life insurance?
- How much life insurance do I actually need?
- Can I have more than one life insurance policy?
- What happens if I outlive my term policy?

Disability & Critical Illness Insurance

(Renamed from "Disability Insurance" to fold in critical illness. We added one placeholder coverage bullet and one FAQ for critical illness below in the same general-education tone as the rest — flag if that's wrong or if there's more specific to say.)

Current intro: "Protects your income if you're unable to work, and provides a lump sum if you're diagnosed with a serious illness — two of the most underestimated coverages there are."

Current "Coverage Overview" list:

- Income replacement if illness or injury keeps you from working
- Short-term and long-term disability options

ctrl the hype.

- Own-occupation vs. any-occupation definitions, and why they matter
- Critical illness coverage that pays a lump sum on a covered diagnosis
- Coordination with employer group coverage to close gaps

Does that match reality?

FAQs:

- Doesn't my employer's group plan already cover this?
- What's the difference between "own occupation" and "any occupation" coverage?
- How long does disability coverage pay out for?
- Is disability insurance only for physical jobs?
- What does critical illness insurance cover? (new — needs a real answer, not just the generic placeholder currently on the page)

Group Benefits

Current intro: "Health, dental, and wellness coverage that helps you retain the people who built your business."

Current "Coverage Overview" list:

- Health and dental plans for employees and their families
- Life and disability coverage as part of a group plan
- Plans that scale from a handful of employees to larger teams
- Ongoing plan administration and renewal support

Does that match reality?

FAQs:

- How small can a group benefits plan be?
- Can I customize what's covered?
- Who handles renewals and plan changes?
- Can group benefits help with hiring and retention?

Financial & Estate Planning

Current intro: "A clear plan for what you're building — and what happens to it."

Current "Coverage Overview" list:

- Coordinating insurance, investments, and estate documents into one plan

ctrl the hype.

- Beneficiary reviews and updates as your life changes
- Business succession and estate transfer planning
- Ongoing reviews as your income, assets, and family situation evolve

Does that match reality?

FAQs:

- Is estate planning just about writing a will?
- When should I update my estate plan?
- Do you work with my lawyer or accountant?
- What happens to my business if something happens to me?

Travel Insurance

Current intro: "Medical coverage for when you're away from home, sized to how you actually travel."

Current "Coverage Overview" list:

- Emergency medical coverage for trips outside your home province or country
- Single-trip and annual multi-trip options
- Coverage for pre-existing conditions, where eligible
- Trip cancellation and interruption options

Does that match reality?

FAQs:

- Doesn't my provincial health plan cover me when I travel?
- I travel often — is there a better option than buying a policy every trip?
- Can I get coverage if I have a pre-existing medical condition?
- What's the difference between trip cancellation and emergency medical coverage?

9. New Service — Investments

Also new, no draft copy exists yet, so this page is currently live with a "full details coming soon" placeholder. What does ELIS actually offer here (RRSPs, TFSAs, managed portfolios, segregated funds?), and how does it connect to the insurance side of the business? Once we have that, we'll build out an intro, a coverage/offering list, and FAQs the same as the other service pages.
